HERE are numerous tungs to oc-cur this week, but any or all of them seem to pale into insignificance with the last one scheduled-the marriage of Miss Alice Roosevelt and Representative Longworth Saturday next at noon. More of the details of the great event are now public than was thought possible a week ago, and all that the world has really any right to know will be told at the proper moment. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt have asked the consideration of their friends whom because of the lack of floor space it has not been possible to invite, which statement intimates in a most pleasant way that there have been no regrets received from the happy company selected to participate in this historic occasion. .. ow for the rest, it looks as if anybody and everybody might be contented and _e convincing, as was years ago a little audience addressed by the somewhat irate mother in a very important official household, whose daughter's marriage had excited something of the popular interest that consumes the feminine popular interest that consumes the feminine mind at present. She had been besieged by questions as to the approaching ceremony, with no convenient go-between as secretary or clerk as a buffer, and she was heartily sick of the whole thing. Her final remark was this: "Do you want me to spread M—'s clothes on the front lawn for inspection?" It scattered the crowd and she was left alone. was left alone.
